About us

Bore Place

Bore Place is a unique 500-acre estate nestled in the heart of the countryside, combining an organic farm, thriving market gardens, a venue for events, and an environmental education centre. Our mission is to bring sustainability to life and provide transformative opportunities for young people, communities, and the public.

For nearly 50 years, we have championed environmental stewardship through organic farming, sustainable energy production, and diverse educational programmes. We continue to evolve with a strong commitment to nature and climate friendly farming, sustainability, and social impact.

The People and Nature Together programme:

Thanks to funding from The National Lottery Heritage Fund and the support of volunteers, we run a range of activities that connect People and Nature across Bore Place, including outdoor learning, citizen science, nature themed events and skills learning, wildlife habitat management and nature recovery. We have also identified and are monitoring six indicator species across the Bore Place estate and neighbouring countryside: earthworms, dragonflies/damselflies, common blue butterflies, skylarks, reptiles, and dormice. By identifying and monitoring these species, we hope to find better ways to ensure that the estate is managed in the best possible way to encourage wildlife whilst also improving the quality of the soil.

This role is supported by The National Heritage Lottery.

About the role

We are looking for a motivated individual who can help us put nature at the heart of everything we do whilst engaging with others to deliver positive outcomes for people and wildlife.
